

Member Profile

“My CBCP has enhanced my career as a consultant. It establishes a level of credibility and professionalism. I’ve consulted for so many industry verticals, bringing experience from one into another.”

Joe Ozorio, CBCP, CBCA

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

The history of IT disaster recovery is where business continuity was born. The concept of disaster recovery grew out of a basic need to ensure you could continue your IT processes. Now that you have your IT systems covered, what about your buildings? Where do people go to take advantage of the recovered IT systems? Business continuity is about systems, places and people.

ADVANCEMENT

Attaining my CBCP marked a significant milestone in my career. It felt great and was a fantastic accomplishment. The ABCP speaks to a certain level of training. What it doesn't speak of is your experience: the accumulated experience of putting that knowledge to practice. The CBCP is a valuable statement: “not only do I have the knowledge, but I have the experience”. Where do you want your career to go? Getting your credential will open doors for you. Having the CBCP certification has gone a long way in my hireability. It establishes a level of credibility.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

My greatest satisfaction is in creating and running exercises. Whether tabletop or hands-on practical exercises, it's a very rewarding feeling to know that you have helped this organization prepare for recovery. Some clients come to me to develop contingency planning when they don't have the skills and knowledge to create it on their own. Others ask me to come in and do an assessment of their plans against best practices and see how it holds up. The advantage of my training, experience and background is it ensures whatever work I do is fit for use for my client, and their culture.

Take your career to the next level.

If you've had your ABCP for a while and you've been working in Business Continuity, getting your CBCP is going to be easier than you think. You've gained experience and have the references to back that up. You've achieved a level of advancement you can show to the world with the CBCP credential. If you're ready to get started, we'll do all we can to get you there. Please check the website for supports that help successfully complete your application.

Apply Now!

